

Important observations

In order to ensure that the students accepted into the MAN-IMAL programme are welcomed under the best conditions, much attention is given to the scientific level of each candidate, which must enable the student to follow all courses with serious chances of completion and success.

All applications will be examined by a pedagogical committee and all final decisions will be sent to the candidates by the beginning of July at the latest depending upon the session applied for. An acceptance form and registration procedures will be sent to the candidates whose applications are accepted to the programme.

There does not exist within French territory any valid, uniform equivalency with regards to diplomas. A foreign degree may be accepted by a French Higher Education establishment and refused by another. All replies to all candidatures depend exclusively upon the Director of the school which is supported by the propositions of the pedagogical committee. This committee places important emphasis on past degree content and the requirements of the degree to which the student is applying. Language capacities will also be considered. The educational establishment to which the candidate is applying has sovereign power over all validations. The French Ministry of National Education does not grant any waivers nor equivalences in the pursuit of higher education.

Incomplete applications will not be considered.

All documents sent for the application of the MAN-IMAL Programme remain property of the French administration, even upon entry refusal. No application document will be sent back to the candidate.

Candidates whose applications have been accepted must present, at the time of registration, the original copies of all diplomas and their certified translations.

Scholarships:

In addition to the MAN-IMAL financial aid you may apply for, the French government offers various types of scholarships that you may qualify for.
